

University of North Carolina.

We were compelled to forego the pleasure of being present at the recent Commencement of our University, but we learn from friends who attended it, that it was most brilliant and interesting from first to last. The fact that the President of the United States had signified his intention to visit the University, and the high reputation of the gentleman who had been selected as the Orator for the occasion, had the effect of drawing together an unusually large number of persons; and all, we are gratified to state, returned to their respective places much pleased with what occurred, and none less than ever attached to an Institution which has given so many great men to the country, and which now stands forward as equal, in all respects, to any College in the Union.

We have been furnished, by kind friends, with interesting sketches of the Exercises; but as we would not publish one to the neglect of the other, we cannot present both to our readers, without leaving aside other matters of interest, and as we are already much pressed for room, we are compelled, however much we may regret it, to give a condensed account of our own, gathered from all the sources of information to which we have had access.

The Public Exercises commenced on Monday night, and were continued until Thursday evening. On Monday night Bishop Ives delivered before the Graduating Class a most able and impressive sermon; and on Tuesday night there were exercises in Declaration by Speakers selected from the Sophomore and Freshman Classes. On Wednesday morning, at 11 o'clock, the Annual Address before the two Literary Societies, was delivered by James W. Osborne, Esq. of Charlotte. This Address is spoken of in high terms. One of our Correspondents says: "His conceptions were fine, his sentiments beautiful, and his advice good and salutary." His subject was American Literature. We hope the address will be published.

Our Correspondent thus speaks of the Address of the Hon. John Y. Mason on Wednesday night: "On Wednesday night it was understood that Judge Mason would deliver his Address before the Alumni of the University. At seven o'clock a large crowd had assembled in the Chapel, and at eight the house was full to overflowing. After Signor George and his excellent band had cleared the hall with their music, Judge Mason arose and proceeded with his Address. I shall not attempt to follow him through the various labyrinth of learning, nor shall I attempt to give you, by any outline, any conception of his very fine Address; but I will say to those who like whatever is bright and pleasing in fancy, pathetic, chaste and sublime in sentiment, great and good in morals, and beautiful and eloquent in composition, that they have missed a treat in not hearing the eminent Secretary." Indeed the Address of Judge Mason was worthy of the man and of the occasion, and it is spoken of on all sides in terms of hearty and unqualified commendation. This noble son of Virginia, by his fine manners and amiable disposition, made many warm friends during his brief sojourn in the Old North State. Our people will hereafter look upon him with increased interest and affection—they claim, in common with Virginia, some share in the reputation he has already achieved, and will rejoice to see him gathering new and fresh laurels in the service of his country.

Thursday was Commencement Day, and the following was the Order of Exercises, to wit:

  10. Benediction.

Our Correspondent alludes as follows to several of the speeches: "The Salutatory Oration by Matt. W. Ransom, of Warren County, was received with loud applause by the hearers. The style of the speaker is fine and commanding, and he proved himself fully worthy of the occasion. The speech of Lionel L. Levy, of New Orleans, forcibly impressed me. He is a young man of small stature, with a fine eye and a good voice; and his eloquence poured and thundered upon the audience. Let him work on, and persevere, and a bright destiny awaits him. Another very superior and eloquent Address was that of William M. Howerton, of Halifax, Virginia. His subject was 'Law and Lawyers' and he handled it with so much humor, good sense, sparkling wit, and genuine eloquence, that he caused the whole house to ring with the shouts and applause of the assemblage. His compliment to the Ladies was both apropos and beautiful. The Valedictory, by J. Johnston Pettigrew, of Tyrrell county, North Carolina, was of the first order. This young gentleman is said to possess extraordinary talents and learning; and he now takes his Diploma, being scarcely nineteen years of age."

The names of the Graduates, upon each of whom the Degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred, are as follows: Alfred Alston, Joel D. Battle, Joseph Benjamin, Geo. Word Berry, A. J. Canster, Dudley Clanton, Duncan L. Clinch, John C. Coleman, Thomas W. Dewey, S. J. Erwin, John O. Guion, Eli W. Hall, F. C. Hall, J. W. Hicks, Elias C. Hines, David Hinton, Wm. M. Howerton, J. J. Shober, Thomas E. Skinner, R. H. Tate, William S. Trigg, Joseph J. W. Tucker, Thomas Webb, J. H. Whitaker, and Robert H. Winborne.

In the Senior Class, the first distinction was awarded to J. Johnston Pettigrew, of Tyrrell, and Matt. W. Ransom, of Warren—in the order of their names. In the Junior Class, Seaton Gales, of Raleigh, and John Wilson, of Hillsboro, obtained it. In the Sophomore Class, it was awarded to Kemp P. Battle, of Chapel Hill, Peter M. Hale, and T. J. Robinson, of Fayetteville. In the Freshman Class, Wm. H. Johnson, of Tarboro, and Samuel E. Whitfield, of Mississippi, obtained it in the order of their names.

The honorary Degree of Master of Arts was conferred, among others whose names we have not obtained, on Lieutenant Maury, of the United States Navy, and one of the President's Suite during his late visit.

North Carolina Regiment.

The last Wilmington Journal contains an interesting letter from Capt. Price of the New Hanover and Wake Company, dated Monterey, May 2, 1847. The Captain commenced his letter in Camargo, but was ordered up to Monterey, and while there concluded it. He says that his Company stands the climate better than any other, and he has lost but one man since he left. Capt. Price gives it as his opinion that the North Carolina Regiment would soon be sent on to reinforce General Taylor. We quote as follows from his letter:

"Before I could finish my letter at Camargo, we were ordered to march for Monterey, and I have not of course had time to write or finish the letter before this day. We performed the march to this place in nine days. We had a train of 150 wagons, and passed through three little towns, viz: Meir, Ceralvo, and Marine. We were in constant fear of an attack for five days. Two attacks were made on us, but they failed in both. The day we were ordered to march, we were launched through the creek; he was about a quarter or a half mile ahead of the advance guard, and some of them dashed from the chapparral and threw the lance into the side of his face, giving him a pretty severe wound, but not serious—he had no time to retreat at full speed. No doubt it was their intention at the time to attack the train, taking him for one of our advance guard, but discovering the mistake, and knowing too, that he would report and put us on our guard, they abandoned the undertaking. This man's name was Bunch, he is a Captain belonging to the Tennessee Regiment, and was going on with us as far as Ceralvo. Again, two days before we got to Monterey, we met the train going down, and in passing, some eight or ten of our advance passed on to our rear about half a mile, and were fired on by these wretches, wounding one man very severely, broke his thigh and killed the horse he was on. They (the Americans) killed two Mexicans. These fellows were following our train, no doubt, and watching an opportunity to make an attack."

"Monterey is a very handsome place, situated at the foot of a very high mountain, and a mountain on each side. Gen. Taylor is here, his camp is four miles from town, at a beautiful grove called the Walnut Springs. Our men are at the same camp. We have here part of the Ohio Regiment, part of the Virginia, one Company of the Mississippi, the Texan Rangers, Bragg's battery, and May's dragoons."

The Register of Friday last contains a letter from a North Carolina volunteer, dated Camargo, May 3, 1847, from which we make the following extracts:

"Our muster rolls, to 1st May, have just come in, and it was in looking over them that I felt it due to you now to write, as they enable me to give you a full and complete list of all the deaths that have occurred in the Regiment, since we left Smithville. Up to that time, you have already published the deaths. I begin with the Companies in Alphabetical order, and give the places of death as well as the County whence the Soldier came."

Company A—L. D. Wilson, of Edgecomb, Capt. Calvin Johnson, of Edgecomb, died at Matamoros, on 28th of March; Wm. H. Spencer, Warren, do., April 6; Geo. W. Barnes, Edgecomb, board Steam Boat, April 8; Amos Edwards, Edgecomb, do., April 18; Littleton T. Griffin, Edgecomb, Camargo, April 29; William Parker, do., do., do., 29.

Shive, of Cabarrus, Captain—Eugene Flowers, of Cabarrus, at Matamoros, March 25. Martin Stough, of Cabarrus, on the road to this place from Matamoros, March 27.

Duggan, of Edgecomb, Captain—Gideon Barnhill, of Martin, at Matamoros, March 24; Wright Durdan, Edgecomb, St. Francisco, April 9; Eppaquina Flora, Edgecomb, Camargo, April 23; Patrick Hardy, Martin, Camargo, April 27; J. J. Stokes, Edgecomb, on board Steam-boat near Matamoros, April 9; Hardy G. L. Calhoun, Edgecomb, Camargo, May 1.

Company I—W. E. Kirkpatrick, Cumberland, Captain—William Caison, Camargo, April 16; Richard M. Johnson, of New Hanover, Camargo, April 20. Total 24.

Most of these deaths, says the writer, were from the typhoid fever, some from the prevalent diarrhoea, and a few from old chronic diseases. He says further:

"Our daily sick reports average more than a hundred, but I am well pleased to inform you, that under the treatment of vigilant and skillful Physicians, they are improving, and the cases are not as severe as formerly."

The men have been very imprudent in the use of the water, and as we are obliged to use from the River, which is rotten limestone, its imprudent use is very deleterious, when not fatal.

In a late despatch, however, from Gen. Taylor, we are assured that we shall soon be ordered up to Monterey, and that, in no event will he march upon San Luis Potosi without all the regiments now called into the service for the War with Mexico."

We are all anxious to go to Monterey, as we learn that the troops are quite healthy there."

Since the above article was prepared we have received an interesting letter from a friend in Tarboro, in relation to the movements of our Regiment and the deaths in the various Companies. This letter is based upon information received from Captain Solomon Pender, A. Q. M. of the Regiment, and shall appear in our next.

We infer from the letter alluded to, that Capt. L. D. Wilson has accepted the office of Colonel.

The Communicator. We have received the first number of a new little paper, just started at Pishborough, in this State, entitled "THE COMMUNICATOR." We wish the paper success, and take pleasure in putting it on our exchange list. It is devoted to the cause of Temperance and to the diffusion of general intelligence, and professes to be neutral in politics. Price $2 per annum, in advance.

Which is the worst? The Mexican members of Congress and the Clergy of San Luis Potosi, denounce the Mexican soldiers as "hordes of robbers and murderers"—Federal members of our own Congress call our soldiers "murderers." Which is the worst?

Later from Mexico.

The capture of Puebla after a sharp skirmish—flight of Santa Anna—the capture of Guadalupe—Herrera elected President—more towns taken—supply train cut off—affairs in the city of Mexico—another battle in prospect, &c.

By the steamship Palmetto, at New Orleans from Vera Cruz, we have advices from the latter port to the 22d of May.

General Worth entered Puebla on the afternoon of the 15th of May, after a sharp skirmish with a party of lancers sent out to oppose his advance. Four Mexicans were killed—no Americans.

Santa Anna had been in the city a moment before our troops entered, but left and pushed on towards the capital.

It was reported that General Valencia was between Puebla and the Capital, at the head of fourteen thousand men, to resist the farther advance of our army.

The result of the Presidential election was not known. Santa Anna, Eleisaga, and Herrera were among the candidates.

Santa Anna is said to have had a considerable force with him when he passed through Puebla, variously estimated from fifteen hundred to ten thousand.

Capt. Mayo, of the Navy, who is now Governor of Alvarado, started on the 13th ult, for Lalliscoya. At his arrival, the town surrendered to him without any resistance. On his return he was fired upon, and Passed Midshipman Pringle with five seamen, were badly wounded. Dr. Barton has been appointed the President of the Board of Health at Vera Cruz.

A party of guerrillas was surprised and taken, close by Vera Cruz. They were fifteen in number.

Captain Mason, of the rifles, died on the 15th. There is a rumor afloat that the Mexicans had captured a wagon train.

An extra Picayune, issued on the afternoon of the 27th ult, contains correspondence from Kendall, at Jalapa, up to noon of the 21st. All was quiet at Puebla; the people appeared satisfied under the presence of General Worth.

Reports state that Santa Anna had halted at San Martin, 23 miles from Puebla, but it was not generally conceded that the main force of twelve thousand men at Rio Frio were preparing for another engagement at that naturally strong point. It is also stated that fifteen battalions of the National Guard were being thoroughly organized at the capital, and there was a prospect of another hard fight considered by many certain.

It was rumored that Gen. Worth was in pursuit of Santa Anna, beyond Puebla.

Mr. Trist was still at Jalapa, the object of his mission kept secret.

The train from Vera Cruz, under the escort of Captain Walker, had arrived.

Gen. Shields had suffered an attack of pleurisy, but was recovering.

Three guerrillas were killed, one wounded, nine taken prisoners. A large number of horses, muskets, pistols and ammunition, &c., captured in the affair heretofore mentioned.

News from Vera Cruz states that the prisoners brought to trial were severely dealt with.

The town of Montana surrendered to the captain of the sloop of war Germantown, but was retaken by three hundred Mexicans.

The schooner Fraternity, at Manila, had been boarded by 30 armed men, stripped of cargo and burned.

Major Dommerle, with portions of the 5th and 7th infantry, arrived at Vera Cruz from the United States on the 18th.

Col. Sowers arrived at Vera Cruz on the 22d, with despatches from Gen. Scott.

Some fears are entertained that Gen. Worth's despatches were cut off, as none have been received at Jalapa or Vera Cruz.

[Telegraphic Cor. of the Philadelphia Bulletin.]

FREDERICKSBURG, June 3, 1847.

The New Orleans papers have arrived here, of the 27th of May, and contain later and highly important intelligence from the Southern Division of our army. There appears to be no abatement of the "war feeling," and appeals are still made to the people to animate their drooping spirits.

The report that Gen. Worth had entered Puebla is fully confirmed. No opposition was made to Worth's entrance into the second city of Mexico. Santa Anna in spite of his threats and boasts, made a precipitate retreat before the advance of our victorious army.

Herrera was elected President on the 15th of May, at the convocation of Congress at the capital. This looks as if Santa Anna was not as popular with his countrymen as recent accounts from Mexico would have us believe. It is not stated what vote Santa Anna received for the Presidency, although it is well known that he was a candidate, and that his friends were zealous in advocating his claims.

A train going forward with supplies for Gen. Scott's army has been cut off and captured by the enemy. [Our despatch does not say which train it was, or what was its value.]

This must be expected, until reinforcements arrive at Vera Cruz in sufficient force to protect the provisions, munitions, &c., that may from time to time be forwarded to the army.

The departure of volunteers from Vera Cruz exceeds the arrivals almost as four to one.

The vomito has not yet made its appearance at Vera Cruz as an epidemic, although the weather is insufferably warm.

The health of the troops at head quarters is generally good.

The wounded at Jalapa are doing well.

From the N. O. Delta, May 28.

The last News, Gen. Scott's advance.

The advance of our army to Puebla takes us a little by surprise. From the previous accounts we were led to think that Gen. Scott had changed his designs after the departure of the old volunteers, and would remain at Jalapa, with his vanguard at Perote. But it appears our first opinion, that we would push on without waiting for reinforcements, is the most correct. Santa Anna, in the meantime, abandoning his position at Orizaba, has pushed ahead of Worth, with his usual promptitude and rapidity, on the road from Puebla to Mexico.

It is said he has 10,000 men with him, and will make another stand at a formidable point in the road—at Rio Frio. This is one of the most dangerous and difficult passes our army will have to make. The road, for some distance beyond Puebla, is excellent, but near Cordova it reaches the mountains, and passes through deep, narrow defiles and over steep and rugged heights. The country is wild looking, thinly wooded with oaks and pines, and rendered very rough and uneven by rocks of lava and porphyry. Near Tescumeco, a little village or hacienda, the road begins to wind along the side of the mountain, in many places being cut through solid rock. Here the road is commanded by the heights of Popocatepetl, which, if occupied by a strong battery, would render the passage of an army over this steep, rugged, and exposed ascent, a task of very great danger and difficulty. But even when the heights are passed, the perils and obstacles of the position are not entirely surmounted; for the road descends into a deep narrow dell, where a small and brave force might operate with great effect upon a large army accompanied by long trains and parks of artillery. This dell is traversed by the Rio Frio (or Cold River), where our brave soldiers may assuage their thirst after the labors of this difficult passage. The Rio Frio is the only point on the road, between Puebla and Mexico, which is likely to give our army any trouble. It is midway between the two cities; when it is passed the road to the capital is smooth and delightful, well watered and well shaded. In some places it passes for miles between parallel canals and rows of Lombardy poplars.

If Santa Anna makes his stand at Rio Frio with an adequate artillery force and complete batteries, our army will have to fight perhaps the most serious, bloody, and destructive battle which has yet been fought. There will be no want of men in this thickly settled part of the country to back Santa Anna in this last stand which the Mexicans will have an opportunity of making. There will be some difficulty, however, in finding all who may present themselves, and in furnishing the works with good cannon. But we presume that the commissioners appointed in Mexico, with Almonte at their head, to superintend the defenses of the capital, have probably selected the Rio Frio as the only available point of defence against an army approaching the capital, and have probably removed thither the cannon intended for the defence of the city. The account of another battle, therefore may be expected in a few days. Of the result we have no fears—our only apprehension is, that another glorious victory may be purchased at a great sacrifice of valuable lives.

We heard a gentleman, fresh from the theatre of war, relate an anecdote of Gen. Taylor. One of the Illinois regiment was thrown into rather close proximity with a Mexican battery, and the balls were flying tolerably thick and rather close—so close at least as to induce the boys to dodge occasionally. Old Rough was sitting astride of his old grey, and being in a position to see the dodging, cried out, "gentlemen, no dodging—it will become a soldier to dodge." Old Rough's grey horse presented a fair mark, and as the enemy had learned his whereabouts because of his old charger, a very brisk fire was opened upon the grey horse. It is said the balls passed around old Rough promiscuously, and the thing was becoming quite too hot even for him. At last a ball passed so near the old man's cheek as to cause him to throw his head in an opposite direction with a celebrity not at all characteristic of old Rough's plodding habits; it was thought the old fellow was dodging—the movement of his head was noticed by some of the Illinois, and a hearty laugh broke out from the boys. Old Rough straightened himself up in his stirrups and said, "dodge the balls, gentlemen, but no running."

Miss Adv.

More Mystery. A zealous Democrat from Tennessee writes us: "I am assured by a distinguished friend, who has messed with Gen. Taylor in Mexico, that he is with us on the Bank and Tariff questions."

Gen. Taylor's own letter, recently published in the N. O. Bulletin, throws no light upon his political opinions. His expression "our friends" has been construed by many into an advocacy of Whiz measures, in as much as the letter appears in a Whig Journal—while his support of a "strict observance of the Constitution" is regarded by others as disapproving a National Bank, Protective Tariff and other heresies of the Whig school of latitudinarian construction. The public will never be sufficiently informed upon this point, until Gen. Taylor develops fully his political creed.

Rich. Enq.

At a late dinner given to Mr. Botts, in Richmond, Virginia, (says the Pennsylvania,) the duty was assigned to that gentleman of bedeviling the President during the next session of Congress. Indeed he announced himself as a sort of Federal bull dog, who intended to convert Congress into a theatre for his performances. Mr. Botts is the same individual that slept with President Taylor, and afterwards threatened to "head him or die."

We trust he will have pity upon Mr. Polk in his stuporous movements against Executive corruption—Richmond Enquirer.

Fight extraordinary. At or near the gap of the Green Swamp, in Brunswick county, a fight took place, about the first of last month, between a she Bear, with Cubs, and a four year old Boar. The Bear attacked the Boar, with the design, probably, of obtaining fresh pork for her cubs—but there was a "slip between the cup and the lip"—the Boar killed the Bear, and thus was the ordinary "in such case made and provided," reversed in favor of the swine.

Will. Commercial.

Grape shot is very destructive, whether projected from a cannon or a junk bottle.

Who made that? Such wit is worth bragging about. "A few more grape, Capt. Bragg."

The Supreme Court of North Carolina will meet in this City on Monday next.

We have received from an "Orange Democrat" a very interesting account of the recent discussion in Hillsborough between Messrs. Venable and Kerr, which shall appear in our next.

MARRIED.

In Caswell County, on Thursday the 25th ultimo, by Rev. J. J. James, Dr. Henry A. Howard to Miss Elizabeth Settle, daughter of Josiah Settle, Esq. of Rockingham County.

In Caswell County, on Wednesday, 25th ultimo, by the Rev. Samuel Wait, Mr. Zachary Patillo to Miss Elizabeth Willis, daughter of Mr. Anderson Willis.

In Rockingham County, on Thursday, the 17th ult, by the Rev. J. J. James, Mr. Alanson Howard to Miss Mary Neal.

DIED.

Suddenly at his residence in Johnston County, on Sunday, the 30th ultimo, Mr. Hiram Chambliss, in the 42nd year of his age. The deceased was apparently in good health, walking about his grove at 1 o'clock; he took his Bible, walked into a new house he had just erected and lay down on his work bench to read. In about two hours after he was found lying dead in the position he had taken to read, his Bible lying by his side, with not a muscle disturbed. Mr. Chambliss had been for a number of years a worthy member of the Freewill Baptist Church at Lee's Chapel, and for several of his last years had worthily filled the office of Deacon of the Church. He was a kind hearted and benevolent neighbor, and an indulgent parent; he has left a wife and four children, together with a large number of relatives and friends to mourn their irreparable loss.

[COMMUNICATED.]

In this county, on the 16th ultimo, of Bilious Fever, Mrs. Mary Dunn, wife of Capt. Nathaniel Dunn—aged 55 years. The deceased had been a strict member of the Baptist Church for the last year. This bereavement comes home to the hearts and feelings of all who knew her. She was an affectionate wife and indulgent parent, and the society to which she was attached has lost one of its most useful members; but the great reward comes home to her own, and in his promises of reward to those that serve him while he lives, we have the strongest assurances that she is now a ministering angel in His kingdom.

Worthy of notice. A Lad 16 Years of Age Cured of Quick Consumption.

PENN. YAN, Yales Co., N. Y., Sept. 14, 1846.

Mr. S. W. Fowle, Dear Sir, For the benefit of the afflicted I cheerfully make the following statement for publication. In January last, my son, 16 years old, was taken with a severe pain in the side, and a violent cough soon came on. He was soon confined to his room, and continued to grow worse for about six weeks, when he had become two weeks to sit up, and had night sweats. The cough was almost constant and he daily expectorated large quantities of matter from the lungs, which were evidently in a state of ulceration. Several Physicians pronounced him in a quick Consumption and put him under a variety of remedies, but all without relief, and declined giving him medicine. One of my neighbors had been cured of an alarming cough by the Balsam of Wild Cherry, and I was advised to try it. I procured a bottle, and after using it a few days, to our joy and surprise he began to amend, and in a few weeks after using nearly four bottles, he was entirely cured, and able to work on the farm.

As he took no other medicine after being given up, we ascribe the merit of restoring him to health.
